Volume 70, Issue 5, Meeting #810. May 9, 2018

Next Meeting: June 13, 2018

MAY MEETING MINUTES

The May RECC meeting was a busy one, as usual. We did have three members of the Diablo Numismatic Society (DNS) visit us, including President Larry C. He even joined our club! The DNS is a very active club and has recently moved to the much roomier Masonic Lodge in Concord. Hearing about that brought back good memories of our club moving from the cramped space behind Coddington Mall, long before many of you became members.

Merle was recently at the Santa Clara Coin Show and talked about it. He remembers seeing DNS member James Laird at the show, and we were saddened to hear about his sudden passing shortly after. James had been a past president of the DNS, a Gordon Donnell Award winner, and a very active numismatist.

JUNE TOPIC

The topic for the June meeting is: HOW DOES THE INTERNET HELP YOU WITH YOUR NUMISMATIC HOBBY? This should be an interesting discussion topic. Give us a short talk, get four free raffle tickets!

WHAT COOL NUMISMATIC ITEM(S) HAVE YOU DECIDED TO SELL FROM YOUR COLLECTION?

- Merle started off the night's topic. He had a really cool 1894 California Mid-Winter Exposition token in his collection, which he had forgotten about. Then he went to a token show and saw a really cool encapsulated 1894 California Mid-Winter Exposition token and just had to buy it. It is the same as the one he already owned, so he wants to sell one.

- Charlie C finally decided to sell something from his collection, which was a hard decision. He has proof sets from 1950 to 1964 that all survived the October 2017 Santa Rosa fire in a fire safe. The oldest were in Capital Plastics holders, the newer ones were in the original envelope and still in the cellophane-like wrapping they were packaged in. They all have some toning due to the heat exposure but are otherwise in very nice condition. The cents in particular have developed various degrees of magenta toning, like the 1955 cent here. The 1964 and 1956 sets were brought to the meeting and both sold quickly. The others will be brought to the next meeting (there was not enough time to get them all prior to this meeting).

- Guy S has an extra Russian 5 Kopek coin to sell you. Those coins are big chunks of copper and fun to own. They must be fun to collect, since Russian coins are increasingly popular on the foreign coin market.
- Bob from the DNS likes bright white common-date Morgans. He bought a beauty MS-66 coin, then found two more to add to his collection. They are relatively affordable and gorgeous coins that he really loves—and will not sell because he likes them so much!
- Rob from DNS brought in two coins. One was a 1998 P Roosevelt dime that was 30-40% off center, graded MS 66 (and for sale). Sorry that I could not get a photo of it---it was a really great off-center coin. His other coin, not for sale, was an 1859 Indian Cent Pattern, Judd-228. It was minted in December 1859 but used the reverse of the 1860 cent featuring the new shield and oak wreath (instead of the laurel wreath without shield used in 1859 only). The Flying Eagle and Indian Cent patterns would be fun to collect if they weren't so expensive! But even one example is really great to own. The pattern cent is pictured below right, for comparison. And as an aside, the "Indian Head" design is actually a representation of Liberty wearing an Indian headdress, not an actual Native American.

- Bill G brought in an 1888 PCGS MS 64 Liberty Nickel. It was very nicely toned, and a great strike. He prefers blast white coins for his collection.
- Mike C sometimes purchases and sells coins on eBay. He already had a 1943 Mercury Dime graded MS 65 with full bands. He ordered a 1944 MS 66 coin but was sent another 1943 dime instead (MS 66). He contacted the seller and settled for the coin, now having MS 65 and 66 coins to compare.

- David A collects picture frames with coins. In essence these are various framed sets of coins, telling various stories about our numismatic history. He has several of the 1970 Silver Story frames, telling about the history of the silver certificate. It includes a silver certificate and a silver dollar, dime, war-time silver nickel, and granules of silver. How many of you were around to remember when the US Government would redeem your silver certificates for actual silver? Or when gold became legal to own again and $20 St. Gaudens coins were selling for $60? That dates me a bit.....

- Finally, Rich W reviewed an article discussing the possibility of discontinuing production of one and five cent coins ("penny" and "nickel", if you prefer). It costs the US Mint 1.8 cents to produce each one cent coin, and 6.6 cents to produce each nickel. But the Mint still makes hundreds of millions of dollars each year in profit, so there will need to be better reasons or motivation before we see the elimination of those denominations.
